East Central College Student Government Association Executive Officers’ Assessment Report

2018 – 2019

East Central College

Purpose

This information has been strategically solicited and compiled to generate meaningful evidence of the learning experiences of the East Central College (ECC) Student Government Association (SGA) Executive Officers during the 2018-2019 academic year. The main purpose of this report is to develop, and over time refine, a framework for assessing the intended learning outcomes for SGA Executive Officers. Using this and future assessments, existing learning opportunities will be altered and new opportunities will be created in order to improve the students’ overall learning experience.

The initial assessment gathers evidence of ECC’s established Common Learning Outcomes (CLOs): Communication, Creative Thinking/Critical Thinking, and Ethics and Social Responsibility. To generate this evidence, the four SGA Executive Officers (President, Vice President, Chief Recording Officer, and Public Relations Officer) were issued a survey at the conclusion of the Spring 2019 semester and completed the survey with a 100% response rate. Officers were asked to self-report their perceived growth and improvement, articulate their approach to problem solving during a challenging situation, compose a logical argument, and submit their most accomplished works. The report contains the related CLOs listed above charts that depict the students’ responses in the order the questions appeared on the survey and are followed by an advisor reflection. The report concludes with future implications for this work. The officers’ submitted works are included as an appendix and a brief advisor reflection of the specific activity.
Question One: Forms of written communication created

CLO: Communication

C1: Adapt written or oral communication to academic and professional, purposes, audiences, and contexts

C2: Apply research methods to locate evaluate, integrate, and cite information from various sources.

C3: Generate, evaluate, and organize materials for purposes of communicating informatively and persuasively.

C5: Summarize knowledge gained through listening or reading.

C6: Demonstrate the use of technology to identify, retrieve, analyze and communicate ideas and information.

C7: Use the standard diction, grammar, and mechanics of American English

Written communication is the development and expression of ideas in writing. Written communication involves learning to work in many genres and styles. SGA Officers are primarily tasked with administrative and promotional writing tasks. What forms of written communication did you utilize in your officer position? Check all that apply. If you chose "other," please elaborate.

The SGA Officers are tasked with creating a variety of written communications primarily including professional emails, meeting agendas and minutes, promotional posters and flyers, and social media posts. Overall, a comparison of their work products from the beginning of their officer terms to the end of the officer terms each officer was able to demonstrate substantial growth in the mechanics of writing and organizational recording. An effort was made to encourage the students to use ECC’s official meeting agenda and minute templates which was sustained for several months before the officers decided to switch to a more traditional template for the meeting agendas. Most communications are sent to the advisor prior to being distributed to a larger audience, and the guidance and edited needed from the advisor gradually decreased over time.

Question Two: Adapting written communications

CLO: Communication

C1: Adapt written or oral communication to academic and professional, purposes, audiences, and contexts

For many SGA Officers, this is the first time they have been required to produce organizational recording documents with the accuracy, consistency, and expectations that SGA demands. All four officers reported that their experience improved their ability to adapt written communications for professional purposes, audiences, and contexts. Further evidence to support their learning can be observed in a comparison of their work products early in their term compared to those prepared in during the Spring 2019 semester.

Question Three: Communicating informatively and persuasively

CLO: Communication

C3: Generate, evaluate, and organize materials for purposes of communicating informatively and persuasively.

Please rate your agreement with the following statement: My experience as an SGA Officer improved my ability to compile materials for the purposes of communicating informatively and persuasively.

4 responses

Unlike general members of the student body, SGA Officers have a duty and established network to convey the concerns of the student body to college administration. One request to administration that shows substantial growth in their ability to communicate informatively and persuasively is their proposal to add a definition for consent to the student handbook (internal document). Other instances these skills are demonstrated include the monthly report to the ECC Board of Trustees, Club Council and Student Senate meetings, and during weekly meetings with the SGA Advisor. All four officers reported that their SGA experience improved this ability.

Question Four: Problem solving using relevant knowledge and theory

CLO: Communication

C1: Adapt written or oral communication to academic and professional, purposes, audiences, and contexts

C7: Use the standard diction, grammar, and mechanics of American English

CLO: Critical Thinking/Creative Thinking

T1: Create new ideas/positions/solutions and/or techniques by applying relevant knowledge and theory

T6: Solve problems using a variety of methodologies

T8: Develop new ideas/solutions to existing problems
Overall, the SGA Advisor observed substantial growth in the officers’ ability to create innovative solutions to challenges in three of the four officers, and slight growth in the fourth officer. To improve the documentation of this growth in the future, it is recommended that this question be posed to the officers during their mid-term evaluation (internal document). This will allow the advisor an opportunity to discuss and retiterate this growth with the students and provide a structured and timely means of documentation.

Question Five: Defending positions using facts and logic

CLO: Communication

C1: Adapt written or oral communication to academic and professional, purposes, audiences, and contexts
C7: Use the standard diction, grammar, and mechanics of American English

CLO: Critical Thinking/Creative Thinking

T1: Create new ideas/positions/solutions and/or techniques by applying relevant knowledge and theory

T5: Defend positions or conclusions using facts and logic

T8: Develop new ideas/solutions to existing problems

Suppose the SGA Officers were invited to speak before the entire ECC Rolla student body. What facts would you share with them to convince the Rolla students to reactivate their SGA?

I would discuss the opportunities that our team took advantage of. For example, we went to a community college conference in November 2018 in Florida. I would also mention that we were able to assist with several 50th anniversary projects and were provided with many experiences in the community and on our campus, which helped deepen our college's connections to the area. Not to mention that you also form a stronger bond with your classmates and get to experience the faculty/staff side of the college and learn more about how the college is trying to progress so future generations can have a great education as well. We also get to do our own community service projects as well like we did a Cinderella's Closet event so high school students in the area can get prom dresses and explore our campus.

I would share with them some of the awesome things we have done, and how we were able to benefit the student body at Union. We went on a conference in Florida, we helped with a candidate forum, we did a lot of free food events and parties; we did an escape room, and we did a consent forum. There were lots of great things we did over the year.

I would speak to the Rolla students about the many opportunities that SGA has presented me with, including a trip to Florida to attend a conference, community leadership and service opportunities, spending time with fellow classmates, learning new skills that will help me in my future career, and making relationships that help me grow.

The fact that they are missing out on the ability to network is enough for me to feel the need to persuade them to do this. By networking, they would have a better opportunity to find employment or academic improvement.

This question was included primarily to elicit evidence that the students can justify their reasoning using facts to support the Critical Thinking/Creative Thinking CLO. Each student was able to justify their response to varying degrees. Reading these responses was informative and demonstrates this group of officers primarily expressed appreciation for their own personal and professional growth gained through their experiences. This may suggest that further framing may need to take place early in the officers’ terms to reiterate the importance of SGA advocating for the rights of the student body.

Question Six: Self-report on organizational learning objectives

For each of the following competency areas, please indicate the extent of improvement or growth in ability you've demonstrated as a result of your SGA Officer experience.

For each of the following competency areas, please indicate the extent of improvement or growth in ability you've demonstrated as a result of your SGA Officer experience.

For each of the following competency areas, please indicate the extent of improvement or growth in ability you've demonstrated as a result of your SGA Officer experience.
For each of the following competency areas, please indicate the extent of improvement or growth in ability you've demonstrated as a result of your SGA Officer experience.

Question Six prompted the students to rate their growth and improvement on various learning outcomes. The rating scale was designed to reflect a Likert Scale so a number could easily be assigned for further analysis (1=no improvement; 2=slight improvement; 3=moderate improvement; 4=substantial improvement; 5=superior improvement). These outcomes were decided upon through group discussion during initial SGA Officer training sessions and derived from the founding principles of ECC’s SGA and inspired by current initiatives from other student government organizations. The officers reported growth on every outcome and “no improvement” was never selected. In the future, effort should be made to explicitly relate these outcomes to each learning activity.
Question Seven (optional): Suggestions for improvement

Do you have any suggestions to improve learning opportunities for future SGA Officers?

4 responses

Help them expand outwards more into the community and always give them the experience of working with faculty/staff. Being part of faculty/staff committees has helped me understand my college more and has expanded my horizons. Give individuals time to demonstrate their strengths as it's easy to get muddled together and every individual has something they can bring to the table. Be open and honest about everything on campus as students are just as concerned as faculty and staff are. Lastly, understand they are students who are also juggling jobs, grades, and extracurricular so allow them to breathe if you see one of them struggling to swim.

I would say to do more fun activities as a team to increase their bond. If they have a bond together then they will work better together and can trust each other more.

I suggest that future SGA officers make contact with SGA officers of the other community colleges in Missouri to trade ideas and collaborate on larger projects.

I believe there are always things that can be improved upon. However, I feel that the upcoming officers will do a fine job. (Sorry not all of my posters are available on my phone, so here are a couple that are.)

Based on the Officers’ suggestions, team building and skill building amongst their own team should be top priorities for the incoming Coordinator. A recommended secondary priority is to further integrate SGA into existing campus and community groups to bolster their professional experience.

SGA Paragraph for Candidate Forum Program

Written by Joshua German, SGA Chief Recording Officer

East Central College’s Student Government Association is very excited to be a host for this candidate forum. Our participation in this event is an important showcase of the great extent of student involvement in the community. Planning the Candidate Forum has been a great experience for the ECC Student Government Association and has provided our Officers and Senators an opportunity to develop a new skill set. We are thoroughly excited to hear from the candidates at this event.

LGBTQ+ Mayoral Proclamation for the City of Washington, Missouri

Written by Juanita Ziegler, SGA Vice President

PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS the Library of Congress and other affiliates like the community of Washington have led observance of LGBTQ+ Pride Month during the month of June to commemorate the Stonewall riots of June 28, 1969; and

WHEREAS millions of participants from around the world have traveled to commemorate and honor the LGBTQ+ members of the community and to hold memorials for those who have been largely overlooked, silenced, and assaulted due to an aspect of their identity; and

WHEREAS the community of Washington is home to many LGBTQ+ citizens included in the ranks of esteemed and accomplished students, service providers, local business owners, community leaders, and government officials; and

WHEREAS through increased visibility, education, and awareness on LGBTQ+ diversity, we can achieve acceptance, inclusion, and celebration of the LGBTQ+ members of our community of Washington, Missouri; then

THEREFORE be it resolved that I, Sandy Lucy, Mayor of the City of Washington, do hereby proclaim the month of June, as

PRIDE MONTH
Future Summit
Several impact statements for ECC were used to create many goals for ECC to complete by 2024 at the end of the Future Summit. Planned by the Strategic Planning committee, which is led by the tri-chairs of Megan Elbert, Wendy Pecka, and Michelle Smith, this event had over 200 people registered to attend, including the faculty, students, and community members. The event is designed to use the community input in order to create a new strategic plan for East Central College’s Strategic Planning Initiative, SOAR to 2024.

It began with several “EdTalks” from invited guests. The first guest speaker, Mr. Donn Sorensen, spoke about the importance of such practices as keeping rigor in logic, servant leadership, and maintaining transparency. Dr. Steve Weinhold, Mrs. Christina King, and Mr. Gregory Stotler each also had interesting presentations with one of them utilizing the topical Jim Collins quote, “Great vision without great people is irrelevant”.

After the “EdTalks”, the audience was split into many different rooms to start creating impact statements that would be used in the future with the Strategic Planning Committee. The attendees were tasked to work together and brainstorm some impact statements for the college. Impact statements are created when a statement of future fact for ECC is added to a consequence and/or opportunity for ECC.

These discussions led to the Strategic Planning Committee coming up with a general “story” of the Future Summit created through all of the feedback which Liz Murphy read aloud. It was a lengthy but important list of goals for ECC, and it included statements about what the attendees wanted ECC to be by 2024 including “A trusted partner in the Missouri education system”, “Students will be part of a peer-to-peer mentoring network and guided by their personal advisor, who will be with them throughout their educational endeavors”, and “ECC will be the lynchpin in the region’s economic development and touted as a jewel in the recruitment of new business to the region”.
